Opening: Harmony Hammond at Alexander Gray Associates

A seminal figure in the wave of feminist art that came out of New York in the early 1970s, Harmony Hammond, who has lived and worked in northern New Mexico since 1984, will have her third exhibition at Alexander Gray Associates. The show focuses on art made by Hammond in the 1990s, when she spent the decade teaching at the University of Arizona, Tucson. In addition to works on paper and mixed media paintings, the show will include an installation—Inappropriate Longings (1992), a triptych made using oil paint, latex rubber, and linoleum—that features a metal gutter, dried leaves, and the phrase “goddamn dyke” scrawled on it. Hammond has called the unsettling work “material witness to a crime scene giving clues of events and actions not fully revealed.”

Alexander Gray Associates, 510 West 26th Street, 6–8 p.m.
